ABOUT ME

I'm a single woman who enjoys life daily. I aspire to add motherhood to my life. I work for a renowned airline as well as spending some of my time in real estate. I have a passion for affordable housing in underserved communities. I take pride in volunteering my time to things that uplift others. My plan is to offer love and stability to a child! I love to travel, enjoying all of the world's destinations. Because I work with an international airline, I plan to expose your child to traveling the world. My hope is that by introducing our child to diverse cultures and world travel, they will never be afraid to try new things or follow passions but will always be confident that success is obtainable. I dare to dream of a better life for others, and my loving spirit continues to encourage others to live their best life also.

MY HOME

I live in a metropolitan city where the finer things in life are at my fingertips. Entertainment, arts, theater, and diversity are all around me. My community is very quiet and diverse. You often see families walking with strollers and kids safely playing in the yards. My favorite part of my home is my baby's room with the added chandelier, book shelves, and stuffed animals already in bed awaiting the baby. I have more than enough room for my parents to come and assist with the baby. My parents have a room on the main floor of my home, and I smile just thinking of the joy a baby is going to bring to my home and to the hearts of my parents.

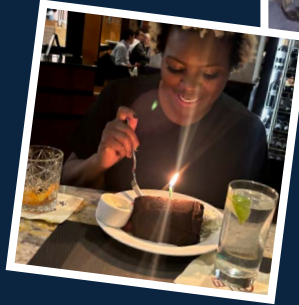

WHAT LED ME TO ADOPTION

I was first introduced to the option of adoption after I woke up one day and motherhood the way I imagined was not an option. I faced challenges with fibroids that later resulted in infertility. I was devastated and could not believe I would not be able to birth my own child. After much prayer and tests, I surrendered to whatever God's will was to be as long as I was a mother to a child. I have godchildren, nieces, nephews, and friends with children whom I play a supportive role in their lives; however, my desire to be a mother never changed. I made a decision to say yes to adoption, and here I am.

my family AND traditions

I love family and the warmth that having them around brings to my life. I am sure your child will feel that love daily. I am very active in my church, and my church family will also embrace and share in my village of raising my child.

I am the oldest and have two brothers and two sisters. My parents are still alive, and we make it a point to celebrate one another often.

My favorite holiday is Thanksgiving. My whole heart smiles at the thought of sitting around eating great food and loving my family. I serve in my church, and my church family is super excited also about my bundle of joy that's coming.

EXPECTANT MOTHER,

As I try to put into words how heavy your heart must feel, I can only say to breathe and remember your why. Why did you consider adoption as an answer to your concern? I hope that as you read about me and my heart for your child, you will be comforted in knowing your child will be in great hands with me.

Then I want to extend to you my sincere thanks. I honor the opportunity you may give me to become a mom. I cannot wait to love, teach, and cultivate a child into a diverse and well-rounded individual this world will be proud of. I plan to share how your unselfish love for them provided them with a life where they can thrive. I appreciate your consideration of granting me this chance to be a mother.

Endless blessings and peace to you always,
Stacy
