about me

It's great to meet you! My name is Julie, but everyone calls me Jules. I come from a loving, Christian family. We all have a strong connection to nature and animals. My weekends consist of reading, enjoying the outdoors, gardening, cooking, or spending time with family and friends. Every Saturday in the summer, you can find me at our local farmers market. I love browsing the local foods, flowers, and crafts! I have many good friends who are considered family. We love to play in the snow, and summers are spent on the lake. We enjoy paddleboarding, cooking, traveling, dance classes, and swimming. Traveling is important to me. I enjoy learning about the cultures of other countries. I have a stable job in the commercial insurance industry. I develop new business opportunities to underwrite for work, so creating long-lasting relationships has been key to my success. I'm outgoing, social, and hardworking.

my home + pets

I live in Wisconsin and am lucky to work from home. It's a small and wholesome community, and my home is within walking distance of the grade school and high school. I also live two miles from a large lake with several beaches. My pets hold a special place in my life, embodying more than companionship; they are family. Pets are essential in our lives because they teach us about empathy, responsibility, and the purest form of friendship. We walk daily together, and I take them on trips frequently. There are several parks in my small town and many areas for hiking. We have many local attractions that cater to young families. My family has joined me on many beach days, and recently we did the Christmas Cruise on the Lake. My niece loved it!

what led me to adoption

For the past three years, I have been actively involved with a local girl's home doing weekly craft nights with them. Right now we are making holiday gifts for their upcoming craft fair. I also mentor one of the girls, and we've become very close. We spend time together weekly doing many activities, such as ice skating, painting, horseback riding, spa days, library trips, bowling, and movies. I cherish the time we spend together. I'm at a very good place in my life: My home is almost paid off, my job is stable, and my life is peaceful. It would be complete with a baby to love!

my family & traditions

I grew up with many fun family vacations. My favorites were our fishing trips in Canada. You just can't beat the beauty and wholesome tranquility of nature up there. I am blessed to have ten nieces and nephews, and I'm close to them all. The youngest kids in our family are my six-year-old niece and my four-year-old nephew.

Our family is full of love and is multi-racial. I come from a large extended family with many cousins. We grew up spending a lot of time together with our grandparents: playing card games and board games, outdoor sports, summer vacations, and holidays. These weekly family gatherings are what I cherish the most in my life. My niece was married a couple months ago. She had the girls all come up for an extended weekend near me. I'm honored she chose me to help her plan these special events. We hold a special bond together. It was so nice to have the entire family together to celebrate.

dear expectant mother

I believe adoption is a unique opportunity to build a family and friendship based on love. The role of a parent is to nurture, develop, and instill life's important values (including honesty, integrity, hard work, respect, and family). I am very thankful for your strength and bravery in navigating this difficult journey and would do anything possible to help make this an easy transition for everyone involved. I'm very sensitive and vulnerable in writing this letter to you because I was not able to have a child biologically. I am fully committed to providing this child with unconditional love and the tools they need to flourish. The child will be provided for emotionally, socially, spiritually, and financially. I look forward to engaging in their culture, whatever it may be.

Being chosen is a gift I would cherish! I have a wonderful support system, everyone is eager to welcome a new member into our family. We have regular gatherings, and I know this child would be surrounded by love and positive influences. I'm open to discussing what level of contact you would like to have, whether through letters, pictures, or occasional visits.

My experiences have taught me to treasure every single moment in life. I promise to support their dreams and values and will cherish every moment together as a family.

With love,

Jules
