ABOUT US

We met volunteering at a church-run tutoring/mentoring program for kids. A year and a half later, we got married and celebrated our 11th wedding anniversary last August. Andy is a deacon at our church, and we host dinners in our home about once a month with church members.

We all love playing board games and outdoor activities in the backyard. Andy is an elevator mechanic and is handy around the house, constantly trying to improve things for the family, especially making the backyard an awesome place for the kids to play.

Virginia stays at home with the kids and is handy in the kitchen. She bakes all sorts of delicious sourdough breads and treats almost daily. She also homeschools the kids. Wednesdays and Fridays, Virginia takes the kids to a local homeschool co-op where they participate in Spanish classes, arts and crafts, reading labs, and Pokemon club.

OUR HOME

Our home is on a half acre with a big backyard and play equipment. From our backyard, we can see many stars at night due to low light pollution from being towards the outside of the city, and fireworks from all over the city on the 4th of July. It has an attached apartment for Grandma and Grandpa, who are ready to play games with grandkids whenever. We live close to a few parks, an aquarium, natural history museums, and animal preserves here in Southern Nevada.

WHAT LED US TO ADOPTION

We have always wanted a big family with at least 4 children. The births of our children were complicated, and now it is extremely dangerous for Virginia to get pregnant again. We feel like we are not done growing our family, and adoption was something we were already open to when we started dating and discussed our future together. We've known many families from church that went through adoption and saw how wonderful it was to see those families grow. Also, Virginia's stepdad, David, is adopted, and we both grew up with friends who were adopted, so we have seen the blessing that adoption can be

OUR FAMILY AND traditions

Virginia has 2 older brothers and a twin sister. Her dad lives in the next state over, and we hope he'll move closer in a few years. Virginia's mom and stepdad live with us. They like to paint and do crafts. During the holidays, Virginia's oldest brother visits, and we love to play games with the kids. Their favorite game to play growing up was Mario Kart, and that is still what gets played every time he visits with the kids. Many friends at church have become like uncles and aunties to the children as well.

Andy has one sister. She is married and lives a few states away, but we go visit them in the summer, and they come to visit us around New Year's each year. Andy's parents live a few miles away and are over at our house to spend time with the kids weekly. We are big board game people, so a lot of our time is spent visiting and talking while playing a game. Food is another thing our family loves. We all cook and love to come together for a meal.
